Don’t worry, I didn’t type 150+ pages. It’s mostly picture memories. My rationale is about 2 minutes long.

Personal Reasoning

I would like to relegate my time to something else I am more passionate about, whether that’s writing, health, education, friends and family, etcetera.

Because of that, I am no longer fit to be an owner of this group, given the high demands and expectations surrounding it.

The next section details more critical reasons for my departure aimed against the genre’s current status. You can skip to the end if you are disinterested in “politics.”

Critical Reasoning

The internet has served as an escape from many disappointing truths of reality, which is a common saying. However, I have determined this escape has transformed into something far worse than reality.

One fact that has affirmed my opinion is that much of the work done here has been for nothing. And that realization was what drove me to resign permanently.

This platform is ultimately an escape—a distraction. It is more productive to worry about issues permeating the real world than trivial problems presented within this genre that do not contribute to the betterment of society.

And most of the impacts of this genre have been negative ones born out of hostility.

Because we interact behind screens, we are not held accountable for our actions. Thus, we act out of line, playing personalities that do not correlate with those true to ourselves or what we portray in public. I am no exception.

This encourages people to dismiss the opinions of others, and it inflates emotions to extreme degrees, resulting in rampant rude behavior and indecency that affects not only community members but also those responsible for ensuring the safety of communities.

Therefore, not only is the culture disconnected from reality, but the principles of community safety have been corrupted, normalizing and—in some cases—romanticizing disgusting behavior, which has exacerbated the continuing relaxation of community rules that were supposed to prevent these heinous acts.

This is a direct reflection of deteriorating integrity. There is a prioritization of growth over safety, born out of a delusion in which people believe the former to supersede the latter. I will discuss this ungrounded thought process in the end.

I can no longer accept this culture of normalization and complicity this genre has established, as it has failed to keep leaders and members accountable for their actions and has justified said actions on several fallacious bases.

This case of hiding behind a screen is not new. But it is one people in the virtual space constantly forget about, me included.

This is why interactions in real life are tenfold more meaningful.

Most of my fond memories are not born out of communities from this genre but instead of ones I have shared with countless loved ones in my personal life. And with my anxiety, they have reciprocated compassion that has accelerated the healing process.

Even in interactions that have involved differing opinions, most of the debate has at least been relevant to an issue present in the world—one that I enjoy discussing and arguing about constructively.

I recognize life itself is not equal or beautiful. But the frustration that it is not drives me more than the meaningless discussions from this genre.

In its current state, this genre is not conducive to mental health. If anything, it has been a black hole that has prohibited others from focusing on discussions that genuinely matter.

This is done through rude and destructive arguments primarily born out of contests of who is the most intellectual, more “correct,” and most dedicated veteran in a genre that has ultimately done more long-term harm than good.

Much of this realization originated from my time in ORACLE, a division of the GOC that played the typical intel role.

ORACLE was a product of the “behind the screen” effect. It basked in its own glory and showered compliments onto itself. And it rarely criticized its own organization.

In its blind egotistic complex, it was inconsiderate of its operations.

This has led many of my friends who were recruited into ORACLE and me to be exposed to sensitive content that we were not adequately warned of before joining. And that has impacted our mental well-being.

This is unacceptable.

ORACLE was advertised as a group dedicated to in-game moderation under the term “corruption,” and it did not explicitly state its mission against sexual harassers, stalkers, and other criminals.

This same fatal mistake is being made across the entire genre.

Serious issues have been entangled with roleplay aspects of the genre, which have misled many—who were not properly warned—into serious problems that have left them mentally disturbed.

This genre is not grounded in reality.

I have held onto hope for approximately five years now. Letting this genre rest is better than trying to change the mess it has risen to.

Friends

Okay, that’s enough disappointment, I think.

The following people—organized in alphabetical order—have been the few positive influences I have had the pleasure of meeting in my time in the genre.

You don’t need to read everything in this section. I have included picture memories of the GOC below.

0PT1C_Andre: It has been such a long time since. You were part of the original team of PHYSICS, and I remember having pleasant, witty interactions with you. Thank you for being part of this project.

77sins: You are down to Earth as one can be. Admittingly, you are brash at times, but they are often accompanied by heartfelt affection that genuinely has made me feel valued before. I hope you continue to exert that influence on others (maybe not too much on the brashness). You have always been there when I wanted to have a conversation, and you have shared so much of yourself. And I thank you for trusting me with those aspects of yourself and dedicating so much time to staying with our friend group. Call me anytime you need help with university or anything else.

aking126: It's been a while! I hope you are doing well, and thank you for tagging along with us in RU. Aside from the big three of us, you were one of the unsung prominent members there. Thank you.

AmeriCosta01: You have stayed with us for so long, and I thank you for being such a great person, no matter the time. I could not ask for a better person to participate in my community and witness nearly every stage after 2018.

andk2: I enjoy your seemingly esoteric sense of humor. It's striking that I have yet to meet anybody with a weirder yet humorous personality. Not only that, you have worked so hard and dedicated so much time to this group while also juggling responsibilities in your personal life; I could not help but thank you so much for your dedication.

Andyr07: I hope the military is treating you well and that you are thriving in life. You were one of many friends I had the pleasure of knowing back in 2018. You helped me tremendously and always accepted me for who I was.

Apollo_Rookie: I know you did not have much time for DEA, but your personality outshined that flaw you had (if you could even call it that). You were always respectful in every situation and incredibly grounded in your work. Thank you for being such a great person and friend. When TTFW is eventually drafted, I will make sure you get the rough copy first.

articman4422: I do not think you truly understand the magnitude of comfort you have provided for me and everybody else in our friend group. You have always been seen as the anchor of logic and the delirious British man. You were someone I need not fear harsh judgment and were always compassionate, empathetic, and endearing. You understand the logic behind many issues and solve them accordingly while being mindful of others' feelings. No wonder you were chosen to be a police 999 operator. I hope you stay prosperous and happy with your career. I could not ask for a better friend who has always influenced me to try to improve. Before we die, we shall go to a SlipKnot (or other metal band) concert in the UK. Seriously, thank you.

AstroGuy45: I don't know where you are now, friend, but I hope you are doing well. Thank you for helping the GOC whenever you can in 2018, and I applaud your effort to keep the genre united and safe back then. It's an endeavor for which I no longer have the energy, and I am sure you did everything you could to make it happen before your disappearance.

Avosang: I admire the seemingly stoic stature you had every time you interacted with the community. I understand you are not online as often anymore, but the times you have helped the group outcompeted the quality of help many others offered. Thank you.

cheercrazyraz: You were a part of the original team in RU. And I remember sharing so many fond memories with you. It was a pleasure to know you, and I know you have moved on to other creative pursuits out of this genre. I wish you the best and hope you succeed in whatever you are going for. Thank you for being by my side along with the others in RU.

Chris_Ryker: A wonderful GOI leader, and I thank you for your advice during my time as a group owner. You were also witty and easy to talk with, and seldom did I ever see you become hostile against others in my group. I know you have had a turbulent past with the genre, and I only wish you the best from here on after. Your leadership set an incredibly positive precedent for every other leader in this genre, and that is one silver lining I will forever value. I don't know if you are still in Japan, but I hope you are not in New Jersey now. Take care.

Coelcanth178: Healing Fire would not have existed if it was not for you. Thank you for being such a fantastic student and subsequent leader. You took the helm nicely. I hope your current pursuits are going smoothly and you are doing well.

corn_1: I wonder where you are now. Thank you for always being an interesting test subject back then. It made sitting around more bearable.

CosmeticHa: You have been around for a long time, far back with SilentWoIf, and when JJ was an angsty PHYSICS LR. You have had my back since then and have been a faithful friend who has always been grounded in reality. Somehow, you are always available for me, and I apologize if I am not for you sometimes. But you have always been fantastic company (bar the times you rage over a game). One day, you should definitely show me the 7/11 you always go to when I travel to Mexico. I need to understand what the hype is all about.

thedeathbr110: You have been with us through thick and thin since 2018. I never had to doubt whether you would welcome others with open arms or be polite because you kept that part of your personality no matter the genre. Thank you.

Dark42ed: Thank you for always being there for GOC development and for putting up with my crazy ideas on a game despite not having significant experience in game development. I hope your pursuit in programming or any other discipline is going well.

DeltaHenry24: I do not know how you do it. I believe you have effectively run the group in all capacities consistently without failure. Applications, PHYSICS, diplomacy, it's amazing. Your work ethic is something to be studied, and I could not ask for a better member to help manage this chaotic mess of a group. You have adapted repeatedly, and I hope you continue to work hard and be easy on yourself. Just make sure you do not follow the bad influences within this genre. You are better than that. And do not worry; you can always ask to play with us at Calico Central.

EggsDuty: If everybody was a beacon of light and I looked down at Lithuania from the ISS, you would shine the brightest. Jokes aside, you are a funny, respectful, and humble friend. I genuinely feel lucky to know you because I know you care when the time comes, and it continues to impress me how effortlessly you brighten my day. Every day, a conversation with you is a learning experience. I promise I will finish Outer Wilds with you, but admittingly, that angler fish planet scarred me to death.

LORDUygar: You helped tremendously with the building and development work. You were a hard worker and put a lot of effort into the group. I am sorry it ended disappointingly. I hope you find success elsewhere and grow as a person from there.

fireskull1774 (Otto): You are a grounded guy. I know we met in a pretty turbulent friend group. Still, you were always the person I felt the most comfortable interacting with and were a better influence than everybody else. I appreciated that you did not fall to the low levels the others have and that you remained an honest and open person willing to talk with me. Thank you for that. I hope to talk more sometime.

HailMadrid: You were a pleasant company and a hilarious guy. You had big aspirations, and I respect your pursuit of them. I hope your metaphorical grieving in Calico Central comes to an end.

haos_OS: You have involved yourself in quite a lot of drama, but I respect your activism and the high standards you hold this genre at. You have been welcoming and very generous to my group. Your writing inspired me to continue my projects, and I hope you continue to develop your skills and succeed in them. Your project is unique, and I wish all the best for your group.

Himomo12: We interacted infrequently, and I wish I had. I know your GFX was of amazing quality, and it always inspired me. I hope whatever you are pursuing now will give you great success because you have demonstrated continuous improvement in your creativity. Thank you for documenting much of the first UTE hunt and being in the group.

HozoneFive: I don’t know you, but you are one of the coolest O5s. Keep being yourself.

hulkatron66: A pleasure to be with and someone I am glad I met in PHYSICS in 2018. You were funny and were very committed to the group's growth at the time. Thank you.

jeremyz1313: You have stuck for quite some time and invested an incredible amount of time into this group. Thank you for all your efforts and constant consultation with the Safety Team.

jjcools45244: I know, you get annoyed when I call you that. But you were why I met all these amazing people on this list. I joined GOC in 2017, but you were there before me. At first, you were a weird fellow, and you still are (in a good way). We have disagreements, but I am so glad you could forgive me. I wish you the best and hope life is not too harsh on you. Because you were a genuine friend of mine who has had bumps along the way but always kept others' best interests at heart. I hope you are continuing to do great things in life!

jurrasicland: I will admit I was very harsh on you when you were around in 2018–2019. And that was one of the pitfalls I made the mistake of becoming a pretentious and impolite prick in my adolescence. But you remain a positive beacon in my eyes. Thank you for putting up with the worst of me (online) and continuing to be a positive influence. Your words of encouragement are what propel me forward with my creative endeavors.

JustASkilledPlayer: I wish you the best in everything. The struggles you were brave enough to share with me are something I appreciate you verbalizing. Talking to you is always comfortable, and that is made evident as you quite literally evaporate all anxiety and fear from me, despite how pervasive they have been in my life. And I do not believe that skill was born out of luck.

K1tsuey: I don't know if you are reading this, and for whatever reason behind your disappearance, I pray that everything gets better for you. You are so, so supportive. Incredibly. In every hardship, you were always willing to listen and listen, and you have read my work and understand my passion for writing like no one else. And the trust you have in me is something I sincerely appreciate, and I thank you for being such a great friend despite your turbulent past. That is one thing I truly respect about you. I hope you continue reading my work, and I am always happy to listen to you. And no, I disapprove of you shipping the characters I write.

kairithecrazy8: You were always a pleasure to be with whenever you were around. I hope you stay positive no matter what environment you are in. You are a hard worker, and I believe you will be fine.

korupted2000: You certainly made me the asshole I was in 2019 when I took over PHYSICS. But you also taught me the importance of being strict. Your tendency toward a zero-tolerance approach influenced many of my ideas of behavior regulation in the group. You are the first ever PHYSICS Overwatch, and my time during your leadership was enjoyable. Thank you.

Kulu_DrAltoClefSCPF: Another original member from 2017. You were there before me, and I feel you laid much groundwork for this group. You were funny and always pleasant to be with.

Lauzzy1234: A remarkable Sigma-9 TFL with whom I enjoyed working. You were very generous with my tight schedule and ensured I stayed within the MTF despite my busy nature. Thank you for giving me a core memory.

learnedhand: Thank you for your extensive work with this group and Blood Reavers. I recall your leadership abilities and seriously considered you for several administration positions. I hope you continue to grow as a person, leader, or anything you wish to be.

lego115: Since the first grade.

MajorHunter200: Your work in the early days was what motivated me. You were a pleasant friend to be with, and I remember always sharing my work with you, and you reciprocated it with yours. That exchange is one of the main factors—I believe—to have continued my creative pursuits, and I thank you for that. Now, get Elite Tier Guardsman on Innovation Security (or don't).

MaxgamerZ55: Since 2018, you have worked hard in Strike. I know you have moved on to your military service with the Navy, and I wish you the best. Thank you for being a consistently loyal friend and someone who has worked on this group for a long time.

Mr_lnf: The longest-serving Test Subject/Civilian to date. Your dedication to our group has not gone unnoticed. Thank you for your service, soldier. Keep up with the cursed eldritch horror content.

My 2016 Beta-7 XO: I couldn't find or remember your name, unfortunately, but on the off-chance you somehow stumbled upon this, I want to thank you for being a stern yet welcoming leader. You have been a significant role model and have educated me a lot about leadership, and I think my first real analysis of that discipline originated from you. You are one of the few reasons I held out for the genre. Call it a curse or a blessing. I hope you are doing well, and if you would like to catch up, please feel free to message me anywhere.

NochiFreddy: You have been surrounded by questionable influences yet remain welcoming. You barely judge anybody, and seeing you being respectful is endearing. Stay true to yourself!

patinous: A funny Polish guy who never failed to make me laugh. I hope you are doing well right now. Let me know if you want to join Calico Central and hang out with us again.

PikachuFantastics: An original member of AT and the only AT commander I vividly remember. You were an incredibly hard worker and did your best to make the teams under your administration as best as possible. I appreciate the work you have done for us, and you were a great friend to have around back then. I hope you are doing well today. Good luck with everything else in the future!

RandomGabi: I remember vividly your tryout for Healing Fire. I am still amazed by how much you have grown since then. I hope you stay positive and respectful (even if others think you are not now). I have faith in you. And if you need help with your algebra homework again, feel free to ask.

RobloJaxxx: You are a dedicated and honorable person. Your principles sometimes take things too seriously, but they never fail to uphold integrity in the group's direction. You have helped in so many cases, and you were also a victim of the time when I was an asshole leader. Thank you for your patience and dedication. You influenced many of my morals positively, and I continue to value that aspect of leadership you have demonstrated.

Rovairo: We don't talk often, but the few times I do, you are always respectful and courteous. I am glad you were chosen to succeed Foxxism. I wish you the best in university. If you ever want to hang out in Toronto, let me know!

serviceuniform: Your achievements are something I hold with the utmost respect. Becoming a firefighter is no easy achievement, and you were able to realize this genre's blackhole-like feeling and develop it into becoming the closest approximation to a superhero, which is inspiring. You are always a pleasure to talk with, and I am glad to have run into you. I know your work can be grueling sometimes, but I am always open to discussing your career and other aspirations with you. And yes, I also respect your Osu! grind.

SilentWoIf: I recall you being my most favorite member of the group when I joined in 2017. It was saddening to see you leave, but your leadership and positive attitude have been a model I continue to achieve to this day. You were an absolute pleasure, and I couldn't ask for a better peer. Out of everybody in this genre, you upheld the principles of leadership and stoicism back then to the highest degree, and you remain a role model I hope to become. Thank you for encouraging me to be better.

Smackbackridge4: A funny individual I had the pleasure of befriending in 2018. I know you are pursuing things in real life, and I hope you succeed. Thank you for being a welcoming individual.

snorebear: A wonderful friend who I remember distinctly from 2018. Despite not necessarily being on the same team, my interactions with you have been nothing short of pleasant. I hope your hobby in game development is still going well, and if you are pursuing something different, I wish you all the best, as I know you are a hardworking individual when you put your mind to something.

Societerian: Funny how K-Pop was what initially brought us together. Every interaction with you was a pleasure, and I appreciate your reciprocating kindness. I hope you continue to be a positive influence and repel any negativity that comes your way. If you want me to accompany you to a Red Velvet or ATEEZ concert, don't hesitate to ask (when I am financially stable).

tex4O: Comedic. You never fail to make me laugh. Just don't smoke too much, okay? I also respect your creativity with your edits and narrative writing. They inspire me to work harder, and I hope you continue pursuing whatever interests you.

ThatMinee: Despite your egregiously erratic work consistency, you have been laboring out by yourself since I gave up on game development management. Your resilience—no matter how consistent it may be—is still something I sincerely appreciate. Thank you for being with us for so long and developing here and there. Also, if Pressure is the driving inspiration for Ignis, try not to make it too similar (insert that one "copy my homework but don't make it too similar" meme), and give the facility a new name. Or don't. It's your work, after all!

TheOnlySwiffer: Your demeanor was both strict and rational. You combined a decent level of expectation and standard to elicit a professional environment while humbly acknowledging that this was a game. You were one of the rare manifestations of incorporating fun into serious roleplay. You are an awesome friend, and I hope you continue to live life to the fullest. You quite literally held up the entire framework of this group from collapsing in on itself (despite how chaotic it was). Hopefully, we can meet in Toronto!

ToughMoe: Do you still hate Americans?

trolsilver: A funny, pleasant friend. You are so respectable in my eyes, and many of the policies you put in place reflect your strong integrity. Thank you for inviting Al and me to that chaotic 20-player Lethal Company lobby and positively influencing my life. I hope medical school (or whatever else) is going well!

Uberspective: You are a very recent acquaintance I have had the pleasure of getting to know a very recent acquaintance who has been working tirelessly in his DEA and has done his utmost best to satisfy both the interests of my group and the one he works in. I hope you succeed in college, and I wish you the best of everything. Please don't overwork yourself in this genre, and take care. Don't hesitate to ask to play with us on Calico Central or in the CIA group chat.

ultimatman66: An easy-to-approach person who did not conform to the whole entanglement of roleplay. I respect you, and interacting with you has always been a pleasure. I hope you are still not an obese squirrel.

Unsecond: A welcoming yet erratic individual. You helped so much with Retrieval, and I thank you for your hard work in 2020. There were a lot of hardships, but you tackled them head-on and deliberated your decisions carefully with the opinions of others kept in mind. I hope we get to play Minecraft with you again with everybody else.

Vursice: We don’t know each other well, but you played a significant role in grounding the logic of my investigations against some questionable people in different complex cases. Thank you for lending your ear and advice.

xClocksHonorx: Otherwise known as Nomen_Clature (I know you hate your old username, but too bad). An early member of PHYSICS. You were a great friend and hilarious, especially with that cannon bit in the training facility. But you had your fair share of policies I found respectable, and you truly worked your ass off in pursuit of making GOC into something greater than what it was. Thank you for your hard work. We should catch up sometime.

Xenophase: You deserve more credit than what you were given for your development work of HELIOS’ first rendition. That game holds so many pleasant memories with the friends I made in the group. Thank you. I trust you are not that edgy anymore.

Xiphex: You are one of the most compassionate group owners I have known, and I hope your community and Kheima thrive as much as possible. Keep being yourself. Maybe we can go to a Sleep Token concert together. Thank you!

YoungMrZippycat: You are the reason my debate skills have improved. Pushing that aside, you have also been there since 2017, and although we were not really close initially, Swiffer certainly brought us closer together, and I am glad he did. You always had my back and have been a voice of reason. You have been the most reliable when I needed consultation and a second opinion, and every argument you raise is always something to consider. But your integrity cannot compete, which is one of the many things you have reminded me about that helped me stay true to myself. I know you work hard, and I aspire to meet your level. Thank you.

All of you have helped me gain some learning experience on this platform despite how manipulative and degenerative it can get. None of you are perfect, but your flaws paled compared to your impact on me.

And to some of you, I thank you so much for taking care of me—and in some cases, have helped my mental health significantly with your company.

Goodbye!

Dear Reader,

I hope you grow out of this black hole and become something greater. If you feel as if the culture of this platform is suppressing your passion, do not hesitate to leave.

You are worth more than fodder to this cycle.

If your passion lies within this genre, I wish you the best of luck in changing the paradigm. It is pretty stubborn.

Yes, I am giving up on this genre. But I have given it too many chances than it deserves, and I cannot deny that I feel freed and relieved now. And if that means I can spend more time with friends and family and work toward a tangible goal I am passionate about, then that’s more than what I ask for.

For your own sake, pursue something more meaningful than this. I promise it is better. Nostalgia can only keep you for so long.

Thank you for the distraction, everybody!

Since it's been unclear on who's allowed to pass what during raids, I've made a simple diagram showing which ranks can past what line.

Blue Line: Operative+ and Operation Teams
Green Line: RU :: Black Sun and SC :: Broken Dagger Red Line: Overwatch. Recontainment units have an exception during breaches. Such as when hostiles bring KTEs to their spawns.

Exception: All operatives may enter the cave. But cannot leave the cave if you are not authorized to pass the blue line.
